On the side walk

I saw an old lady sitting on the side walk. She was wearing a silk dress with a gold belt. All the folk on our street say she talks and sulks a lot. I went up to her and gave her some milk and bread. I told her she could stay in the room next to the loft in my house. She swept the room and kept her bags on the chair. Then she locked the door with a bolt and slept all night.
