5. The British Council is committed to providing a safe environment for everyone we work with so that they are able to participate to their fullest.

If you have any comments, complaints or concerns related to safety, please contact our focal point for this event/training session Michelle Thiongane at michelle.thiongane@britishcouncil.org

Alternatively, you can report any concerns, issues or complaints that you have by email, letter or telephone. Please write to Englishconnects@britishcouncil.org

These will be dealt with in the strictest confidence in line with our safeguarding policies for children and adults.

Pre-webinar polls:

1/ Have you ever tried using gender-responsive pedagogy or rewards in class?

- a) yes, both, often 58%
- b) I've tried one of the above 25%
- c) I've never tried either of these 17%

2/ Have you ever used more than one language in class to teach English and make your classes more inclusive?

- a) No – it's not recommended to bring languages other than English into English classes 6%
- b) I'd like to try this, but I'm not sure how 13%
- c) Yes – I do this all the time 81%

About the speakers

Objectives

To discuss the following:

- how to manage an inclusive class
- the use of multiple languages to promote cultural awareness and support language development
- how gender-responsive pedagogy can help
- using rewards in class

Managing an inclusive class

This farmer is in a dilemma of crossing these animals to the other side. Solve the riddle.

What is inclusion?

Inclusion is a basic right of everyone and its objective should be to embrace everyone regardless of race, age, gender, disability, religious and cultural beliefs.

What is an Inclusive classroom?

An inclusive classroom is one that creates a supportive and responsive environment for all learners.

(Inclusive Classrooms, TeachingEnglish.org)

How to implement inclusivity in classrooms and possible benefits to learners.

Create consistent routines

- Make predictable lesson structures
- Have clear signals for transitions
- Have consistent group work roles

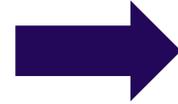

Benefits

- Prepares learners psychologically and builds readiness
- Builds responsibility and eventual autonomy

Provide a physically and emotionally safe space

Physically:

- Have same seating plans
- Promote a representation culture e.g posters
- Decorate the classroom with students' projects

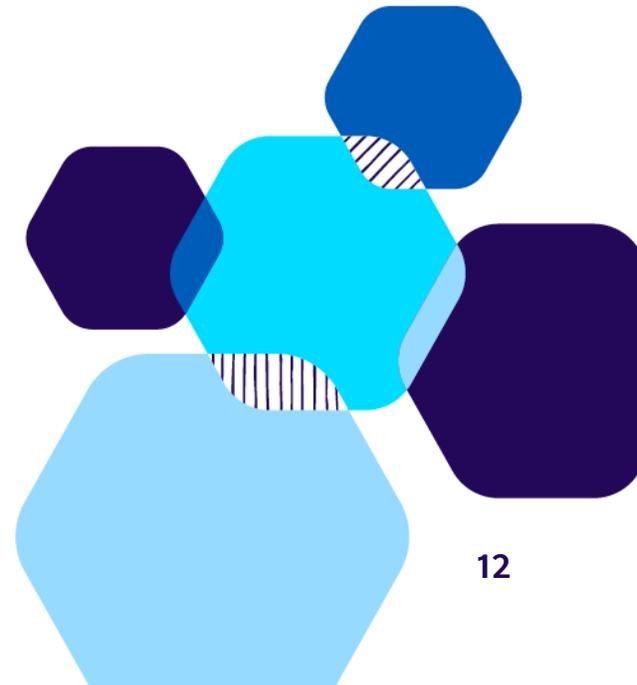

Benefits

- Gives a sense of belonging
- Builds confidence

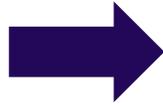

Emotionally:

- Focus on learners' strengths more than their weaknesses

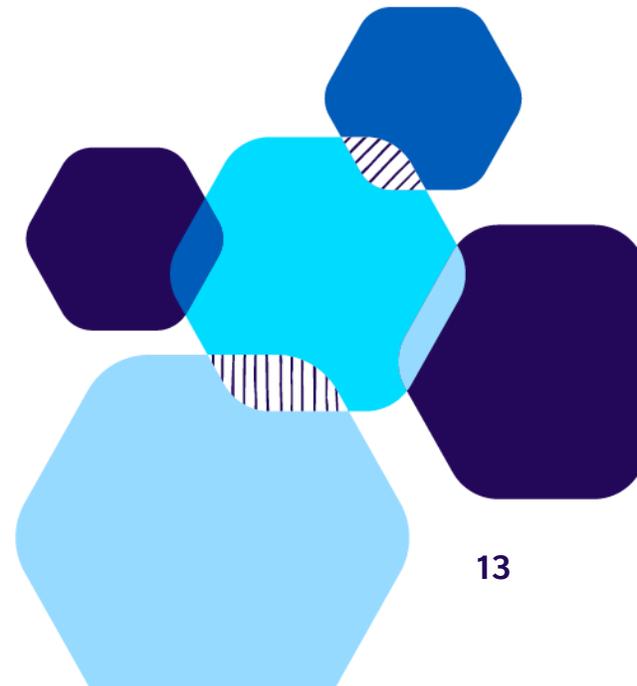

Tailor activities to be inclusive

- Understand learners needs, strengths and weaknesses
- Differentiate activities
- Give extra time to struggling learners

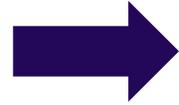

Benefits

- Builds learners' autonomy
- Makes learning personalised

Collaborate with others

- Work with learners' parents and carers e.g set joint learning outcomes and goals

Benefits

- Promotes good understanding of learners
- Makes learning purposeful and strength-based
- Builds a positive learning community

Conclusion

Consistency is crucial in promoting a safe learning community and environment where no learner is left behind.

Multilingual Approach in the Classroom Management

Multilingual Approach in the Classroom Management

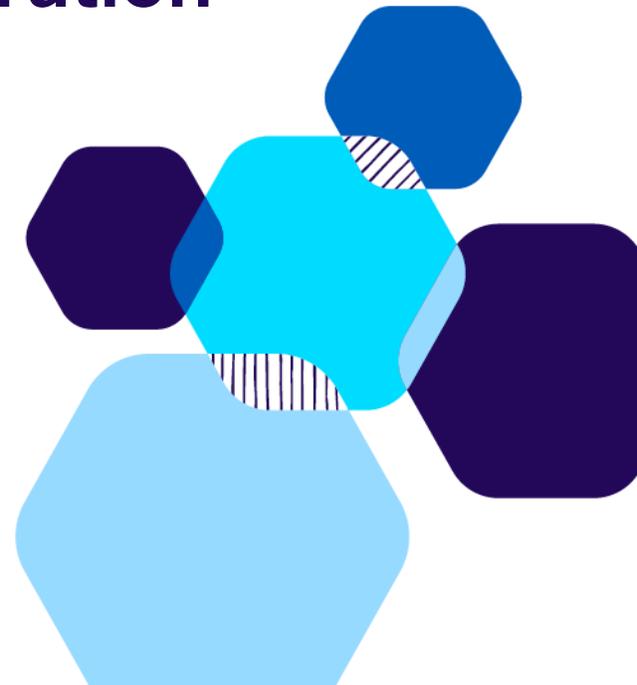

“ A multilingual approach in classroom management refers to the intentional use of students’ multiple languages as a resource for teaching, learning, and maintaining an inclusive classroom environment. It involves recognizing and valuing linguistic diversity, using students’ native languages alongside the target language to support comprehension, participation, and classroom harmony.”

What are the advantages of this? Please add in the chat

Significance of the Multilingual Approach

Multilingualism in class has numerous advantages:

- a) It fosters appreciation and cultural awareness.
- b) It increases academic value.
- c) It increases creativity and encourages collaboration of local languages.
- d) It reduces misunderstanding and enhances communication.

Multilingual Classroom Practices

- Role-playing scenarios using students' home languages and the target language (English) - (Code-switching). (e.g. at the airport, the supermarket). (words in their own languages)
- Thematic or project-based learning. Students do research in their native languages and present in English (for example, at a cultural event).
- Contrastive awareness practices by making systematic comparisons between languages (phonology, grammar, vocabulary ...) to highlight similarities and potential differences learners can use. (For example, verb tense in L1 and L2/Word order in a sentence in L1 and L2...etc).
- Pre-writing tasks; students can use their home languages in brainstorming ideas, journaling, freewriting, and drafting.

Code-Switching

“Code-switching refers to the alternation between two or more languages or language varieties within a single conversation, sentence, or discourse. It is a common phenomenon in bilingual and multilingual speakers and reflects cognitive flexibility and sociolinguistic awareness. While earlier studies often categorized it as interference or error, more recent perspectives recognize it as a rule-governed and meaningful behavior.”

Challenges in Multilingual Classrooms

- According to a study by Garcia and Lin (2016), the lack of a defined multilingual policy means that schools and teachers are unsure how to use or support numerous community languages in their classes.
- Overreliance on L1 that limits L2 input. Teachers should set clear task goals requiring progressive L2 production.
- Students may struggle to understand and use English; they may frequently switch code between their home languages and the language of instructions.

Gender-responsive pedagogy

What is Gender-responsive Pedagogy?

- Gender-responsive pedagogy (GRP) refers to teaching methods and practices that recognize and respond to the different learning needs of male and female learners.
- It aims to create an inclusive classroom environment where all students can thrive, regardless of their gender

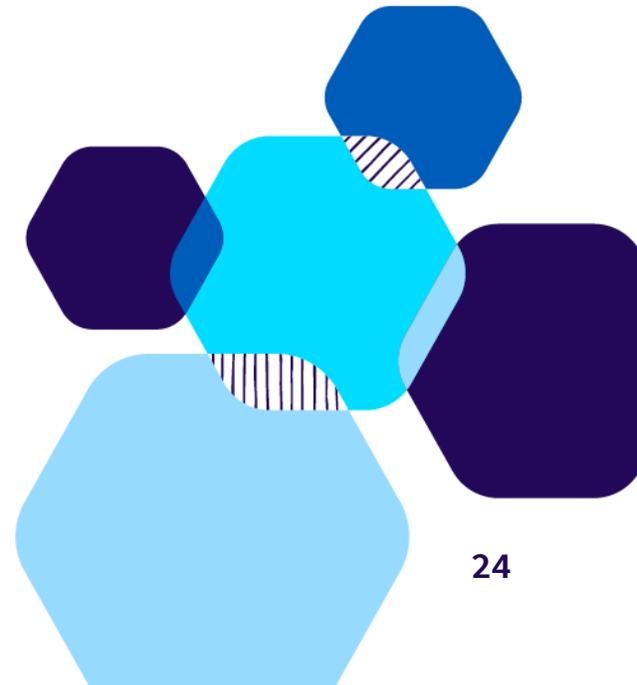

What Gender Bias Looks Like in Our Classrooms

Gender bias may appear when:

- Boys answer more questions; girls remain silent
- Girls are assigned cleaning tasks; boys take leadership roles
- Teachers praise or discipline learners differently based on gender
- Learning materials show limited or stereotyped gender roles
- Language reinforces assumptions (e.g., ‘boys are tough’, ‘girls are quiet’)

Can you think of any other examples? Please add in the chat

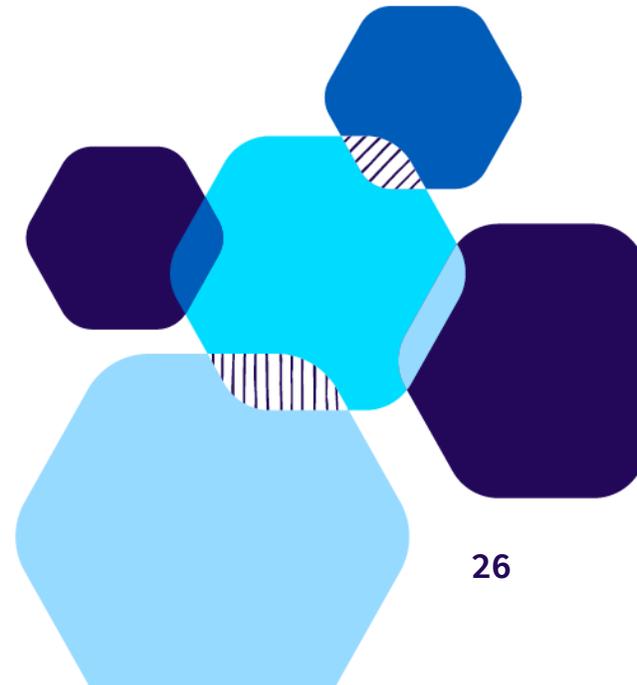

Simple GRP Strategies You Can Use Immediately:

- Rotate classroom roles intentionally and fairly
- Call on boys and girls in balanced ways
- Mix seating arrangements and group work
- Use gender sensitive language
- Same rules, same consequences
- Agree on one class rule: 'Everyone participates. Everyone matters.'

Anything else? Please suggest in the chat

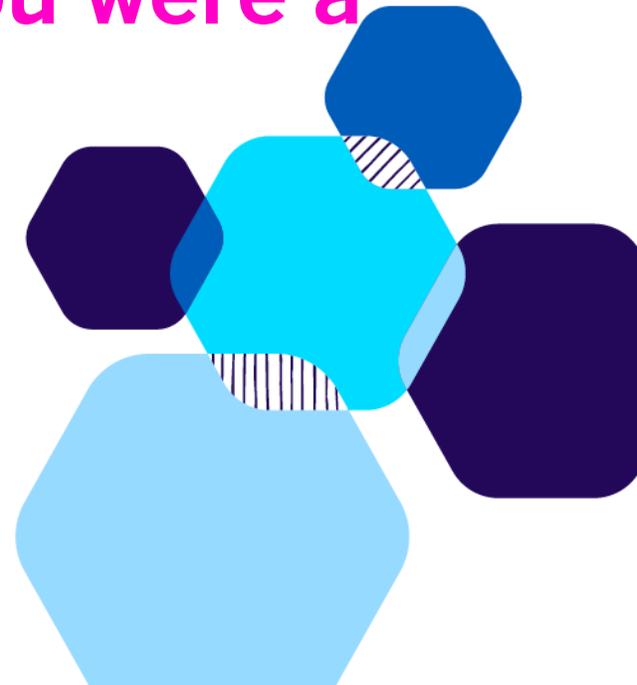

In summary, GRP helps us build classrooms where fairness is normal, participation is balanced and every child has space to learn confidently. Thank you for listening and I encourage you to try at least one of these strategies in your next lesson

Employing a reward system in class

Questions:

1. In one word, what comes to mind when you hear “reward system”?
2. Why should we give rewards?
3. Did you have a reward system when you were a student?

Employing a Rewards System for the Class

Definition:

Any process that encourage certain behaviour by giving positive outcome

Why use reward system?

- Encourage positive behaviour
- Create predictability
- Reduce misbehaviour by rewarding desired actions rather than constantly punishing
- Increase participation, especially in language learning where confidence varies
- Promote inclusivity: all students have pathways to succeed

Types of rewards

Tangible/material rewards

- Physical incentives given to students
- Concrete items that students can see, touch or use

Examples:

- Stationery/school supply
- Small gifts/toys

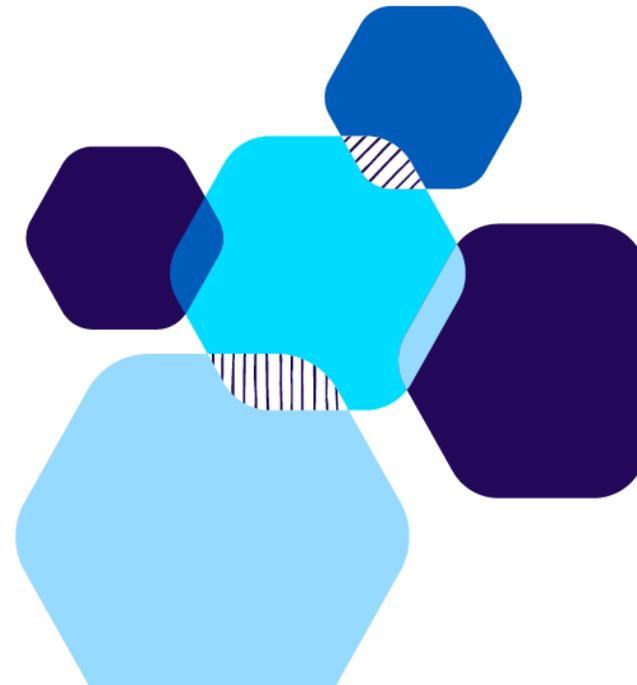

Non-tangible rewards

- Incentives that are not based on physical items
- Focus on emotional, social and psychological motivation

Examples:

- Praise and verbal recognition
- Positive feedback

What are the pros and cons of each?

Tangible rewards

Pros

- Provides immediate motivation
- Boost engagement
- Reinforce behaviour effectively-link action to outcome
- Enhance satisfaction and morale-can create a sense of achievement

Cons

- May undermine moral development
- Reduce intrinsic motivation to students
- Short term behaviour change
- Shift focus from learning to winning

Non-tangible rewards

Pros

- Encourage intrinsic motivation
- Build self-esteem and confidence
- Promote positive behaviour and academic engagement
- Are cost effective and sustainable
- Help students value effort and improvement not just outcomes

Cons

- Less motivating for some students
- Perceived as insincere or routine if over-used or given without clear criteria
- May fail to address students' external needs
- Harder to measure value; don't have a clear or equal value for all students

Reflection

Which is more sustainable (A or B)?

Which fits your school context (A or B)?

A: Points, praises, public, leaderboards

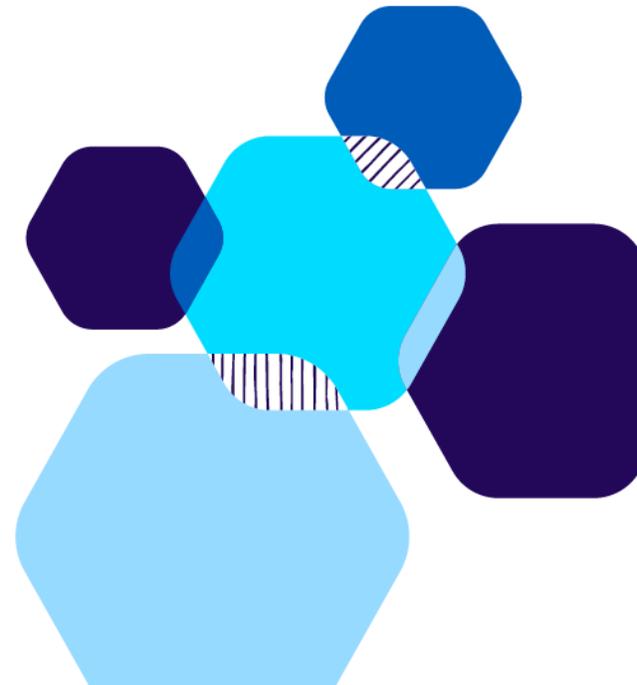

B: Recognition, choice, responsibility, feedback

Based on this session

i) One reward practice I will keep

ii) One I will change

iii) One I will remove
